SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Agent, Chas. Beyschlag, 503 Main St.

BIG PACKER DIES
IN CHICAGO TODAY

Edward Morris Comes to Death Through Strain of Business Exertions

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Edward Morris, head of the packing firm of Morris & Co. and a dominant figure in the meat industry of America, died at 6:15 a. m. today at his city residence, 4800 Drexel boulevard, after an illness of several months. He left a fortune of from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The strenuous life caused the big meat packer's death. Though he was only 47 years old, physicians attributed his end to a general physical breakdown, due to his unusual exertions as a young man when he succeeded to the presidency, after the death of his father, Nelson Morris, the founder of Morris & Co. The fact that he was slowly wasting away became known several months ago after his return from California, where he went in search of health. Some of his business associates declared at that time that the strain he underwent during the celebrated beef packer's trial in the United States court in Chicago did much to hasten his death.

SIX NEW MEN ON MISSION BOARD

Six new members will probably be elected at the regular yearly business meeting of the board of directors of the City Mission tonight. Owing to the mission banquet held in the Y. M. C. A. building some weeks ago, the yearly meeting was postponed, although the fiscal year of the mission closed October 30. Superintendent D. C. Dewey will probably be elected to hold the office for another year.

According to Superintendent Dewey the mission is in better shape financially than it has ever been. Complete reports will be read at the meeting tonight.

A musical program has been arranged. Miss Marie Novak will sing and the children of the mission Sunday school will present a flag drill.

LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS
GO TO CONVENTION

Mrs. Florence Bunting, president of the local Woman Suffrage association, and Mrs. Carrie P. Daniels will probably represent La Crosse at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Wisconsin Woman Suffrage association at Madison on November 19 and 20. That they would be the probable delegates to the meeting was made known after an invitation to attend the convention was received here by Miss Grace T. Gesell, corresponding secretary of the local suffrage league.

ALIENIST BURSTS OUT AGAINST JEWS

KIEFF, Russia, Nov. 3.—Prof. Sikorski of Kieff university was recalled to the ritual murder witness stand to complete his testimony. The president of the high court took occasion to rebuke the scientist for his bitter anti-Jewish outbreak last night.

When he took the stand first, Sikorski launched into a bitter denunciation of Jews, declaring that he possessed information that they committed ritual murders and used human blood in their religious rites. He said that such murders were always conducted by two or more persons and he was sure that four persons killed Andrew Yushinsky. The court tried vainly to stop Sikorski.

Everyone seems to think it is funny if you want to sneeze and can't. Wigwag—"Bjones boasts that he was born to command." Henpeck—"How does he know? He has never been married."

ARMY OF POLICE
KEEPS CITY QUIET

Indianapolis Peaceful Following Rioting Yesterday in Which One Was Killed

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—With 400 deputy sheriffs and special policemen aiding the regular department in keeping order in the street car strike, the city was comparatively quiet today. No attempt to run cars has been made since early Sunday when of four cars that were taken out by strikebreakers under police protection three were badly damaged by bricks.

An autopsy today on the body of Isaac Fleischer, a young strikebreaker killed in yesterday's rioting at the car barns, showed that he had been shot from behind, evidently by another strikebreaker accidentally. Except that his home is supposed to be in Philadelphia, nothing is known about Fleischer.

Most successful strike in the international union's history, was Strike Leader J. J. Thorpe's description of the street railway situation here today. He pointed out that never before in a city of this size, has a garment's union so completely tied up traffic that not a local nor interurban car moved in the city for over twenty-four hours and only a very few moved in the first thirty hours after the walkout was ordered.

PICKANINNY PRANK
DEMORALIZES CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 3.—The police today are looking for a coal black little pickaninny, who celebrated Halloween by causing a miniature flood, a call for the police, fire and water departments, tying up street car traffic for an hour, closing a saloon for the night and ruining four dresses and two suits of clothes.

The pickaninny saw a telephone cable spool, wound with 1,000 pounds of cable, standing at the top of a hill, blocked up by a chunk of wood. He chuckled and removed the block.

The spool started, gathered momentum, and within 100 feet of Twelfth street, thronged with pedestrians, collided with a water plug, snapping it at the base. Water spouted in a stream and flowed into a corner saloon until patrons mounted the bar. Four girls raised their dampened skirts and fled. So did the pickaninny.

CHILDREN LOVE
SYRUP OF FIGS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

WAREHOUSE FALLS ON SIX SLEEPERS

Collapses and Crushes a Dwelling Next Door Killing Two and Hurting Four

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 3.—With a roar that aroused the entire town the Greenbough warehouse collapsed here early today, demolished the two story frame dwelling occupied by the family of John Huges, adjoining, killing two persons and injuring four others. The dead are Huges and his niece, Eva Doody, ten.

So great was the weight of the wall which collapsed that the roof of the Huges house was crushed into the cellar. All members of the family were sleeping on the second floor, but had to be lifted out of the debris in the basement by the police and members of the fire department. Scores of citizens also aided in the rescue.

Daddy's Bedtime
Story — The Kitten And the Fly Paper.

THE last fly of summer, as daddy playfully called it, was buzzing around the room.

"It's warm here," Evelyn remarked. "I suppose it doesn't like to go to bed in the cold."

"Well, neither do you," Jack said. "I guess, anyway, Dinah is glad fly-time is done, for then she won't need to keep flypaper in the kitchen."

"Ugh! Flypaper! Does Dinah have flypaper there?" daddy exclaimed. "Well, Dinah better watch when she lets her canary out of his cage. Flypaper isn't safe to have about in a room where there are pets."

"Susie had a little pet kitten last summer. Sprite was the liveliest kitten you ever saw. Susie called her Sprite because she seemed never to care to be still."

"One day Sprite went out through the kitchen door to the kitchen porch. She noticed the door to the laundry was open, and as once she had found a bowl of milk on a table, Sprite thought she would sneak in and look around."

"She sniffed about, but there was nothing to be found but some glasses of grape jelly which had been set in on the table to cool. Sprite didn't care for jelly, and she turned and looked around to see if there was anything else in there worth bothering about."

"At the other end of the table was a piece of paper. Sprite gave a mew of delight, for several flies were buzzing about on it."

"Now," she said, "I shall get a fly!"

"The kitten reached out her little paw to hit one of the flies. Then something funny happened. Her paw stuck tight to the paper."

"Meow, meow!" she cried. "Let go of my paw!" But, of course, the flypaper didn't let go.

"Sprite put out the other paw to push the paper away, and it stuck too. "Meow, meow!" howled the kitten, and danced about until her other two paws and tail stuck to the flypaper. Then she laid down and rolled, and some of the paper stuck to her side. She was caught tight and struggled blindly until she fell off the table."

"Luckily for her, Susie came along and heard the noise."

"Good gracious!" she called. "Poor little Sprite has stuck to the flypaper!" Then Susie and the cook and the rest of the family did their best to think of a way to free Sprite. Even after they picked the paper off she was a very sticky kitten, so Susie took Sprite up to the bathroom and gave her a bath in warm water and dried her and combed her hair. Sprite then had a bowl of warm milk and, tired and sorry, went to sleep on her cushion."

THE "IT CAN'T BE DONE" BUGBEAR

Observing that "La Follette won a long fight when congress authorized the interstate commerce commission to make a valuation of the actual property owned by railroads and other public utilities" Harper's Weekly suggests that "such states as Wisconsin and Minnesota are indicating that the problem, although difficult, is not insoluble." This, of course, is in answer to the complaint of conservatives that $15,000,000 will be spent in attempting an impossible task. Harper's does not think so, and adds: "If the work had been done a generation ago the country would be better off now."

A BURR UNDER THE DONKEY'S TAIL

If the money trust's proposal of a publicly owned, publicly managed, strong central bank, with a dozen branches, had been made sincerely, it would, despite its source, deserve to be considered seriously.

There are few careful students of the banking and currency problem who do not believe that a central bank, publicly owned, and standardizing our credit system, would be the ideal plan. Public opinion has been skittish of this solution of the problem because it has been afraid that such a bank would be public only in name—that it would in reality be the creature of the powers that prey. When Wilson undertook to dethrone private tyranny in banking, he had not only to attack the foe in front, but also guard against the traitors in the rear. He had to cut his pattern to fit his cloth. The regional reserve bill was the result.

It establishes the policy of public control. It decentralizes credit-extending power. It vests in each commercial district the largest possible measure of financial home rule. It gives the main values in a central bank without incurring the opposition which the proposal of a central bank would arouse. It is a practical and a practicable measure, whereas the other, however good in theory, is at this time impracticable.

In declaring now for a central bank, owned and run by the people, the money trust is tricky and crooked. It knows that a central bank bill could not command the support of a majority in congress. It knows that if Wilson switched from the regional reserve plan to the central bank plan he would gain no new strength and would lose much of his present support. It throws the proposal into the arena as it would put a burr under the donkey's tail, in the malicious hope of causing a runaway.

Isn't Joe Bristow of Kansas making a mistake in lending his help to such a purpose?—State Journal.

Artist Knowles having got back from living the primitive life in the Maine woods, it is hoped the servant won't keep him waiting more than five or ten minutes mornings for his shaving water.

Although anything that keeps money in circulation is considered a public benefit, some people are urging that the courts hurry up and send Harry Thaw back to Matteawan.

A New York educator says teachers would be more cheerful if they would dance the tango. But will the men dance with any girl who has education enough to be a teacher?

The girls have all kinds of stunts Halloween to determine their future husbands. Probably one reason why these are so popular is that the forecasts are never correct.

It is said that college students are not allowed to play football unless they keep up with their studies. How some of these trifles do interfere with the real ends of life!

While eggs are terribly high, few people undertake to raise hens in their back yards, as the neighbors would think they were having to economize.

The vote at the Mexican election was light, as real contests of much more importance were taking place at the bull fights.

TO COMMEND WILLIAMS

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Chicago alumni of the University of Minnesota today started a movement to have the Gopher alumni organizations all over the middle west adopt resolutions commending the work of "Doc" Williams, football coach, following Minnesota's decisive defeat of Wisconsin on Saturday. Twenty-four hours before the game alumni at Duluth voiced a demand that Williams be removed on the ground that he had not made good.

One morning Jenkins looked over his garden wall and said to his neighbor: "Hey, what are you burying in that hole?" "Oh," he said, "I'm just replanting some of my seeds, that's all." "Seeds!" shouted Jenkins angrily. "It looks more like one of my hens." "That's all right. The seeds are inside."

SPARTA, WIS.

There was not much damage done here Halloween and the little that there was consisted in a few misplaced buggies and wagons and so forth. The young people seemed to take leave of their energy in parties and the homes.

Drayman Hemstock is about to move his horse barn that stands directly opposite the postoffice to his lot on South Water street near the Sparta house. The grounds where the barn stood will be occupied by the new postoffice that will be built in the near future. The townspeople have been looking forward to the event of the building of a fine postoffice as a great addition to the looks of the city. It is not known when the work on the postoffice will be begun.

Locals and Personal Zel Rice and his bride have returned from their wedding trip. They arrived here Friday evening. They will take up their residence on South Court street.

Harley Jefferson returned Sunday from a trip to New York city where he was on business and then south to visit some of his relatives. Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Madden went to Winona to visit for the day Saturday.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

No Chance Left It's great to be a hero for the public to acclaim; It's great for anyone who gets a strangle hold on fame; It's great to be an idol of the people, but, somehow, It's pretty hard to butt into the hero game just now.

The airships are invented and they're flying all around; The honors have been given with gold medals by the pound. There ain't no use in fingerin' on glory in that line; No chance to have a medal upon your breast or on mine.

Marconi hit the bull's-eye in the wireless field for fair; The photograph's a chestnut and there ain't no glory there. Perhaps we might be heroes if they'd only have a war. But there don't seem to be a thing that is worth fightin' for.

The fireless cooker man got his, the telephone man, too; The wireless rat trap man was praised for makin' something new. Seems like most everything's been done, e'en to the tango dance; How can we all be heroes when there ain't the slightest chance?

Two darky outside of Baltimore met on the street the other day, when the following conversation ensued: "Why, Mrs. Botts, I ain't seen you for I don't know how long. De last time I calls at your house, dere's a sign on it 'For Rent.' Has you-all moved?" "Yes, Mrs. Brown, we's moved. My old man got tired living in all de noise an' bustle of de city, and so we goes away out in de suburbs."

"What direction does you go?" "We goes northwest." "An' jest where is you located?" "We is located in a new neighborhood, Mrs. Brown. It's kinder hard to describe it exactly but if I had a map of de city I sure, I could show you. We lives jest about half an inch outside de city limits."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Clara's Ruse "You know, dear," said the young man nervously to the pretty girl, "I'm really frightened about speaking to your father, he's so awfully sure of himself, you know." "Is that all that's causing the delay?" inquired the modern miss, dryly. "If that's so, just leave it to me. I'll manage father."

Accordingly next morning she approached pater-familias as he potted plants to the accompaniment of a choice Havana and carpet slippers. "Paa," she murmured, with feigned mirth, as she took his arm, "what do you think? That young fool Perkins has proposed to me! Just fancy!" And

Much to be Thankful For Of a certain bishop the following anecdote is told: While presiding over a conference a speaker began a tirade against the universities and education, expressing thankfulness that he had never been corrupted by contact with a college.

After proceeding for a few minutes the bishop interrupted with the question: "Do I understand that Mr. X is thankful for his ignorance?" "Well, yes," was the answer, "you can put it that way if you like." "Well, all I have to say," said the prelate, in sweet and musical voice, "all I have to say is that Mr. X has much to be thankful for."

Another thing in favor of the Ben Davis apple is that it doesn't keep as long as canned fruit.

IN The WORLD OF WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Holland of Chicago is declared to be one of the most expert criminologists in the world.

Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, in a recent address before the American Prison association, advocated the passage of a law to punish persons who tamper with paroled men and women. She declared that men and women under parole face evil influences, and argued that since there are laws against persons conniving to liberate wards of the state from prison, the law should apply to those influencing paroled men and women who are still in the custody of the state.

The forty-fifth annual convention of the National American Woman association, which will be held in Washington, November 29th to December 5th, will be attended by representatives from 1,000 branches in forty-two states. A new constitution will be adopted.

Desired "Accomplishments"

The Girl's World suggests fifteen things which every girl can learn before she is 15. Not every one can learn to play or sing or paint well enough to give pleasure to her friends, but the following "accomplishments" are within every girl's reach:

- Never fuss or fret or fidget.
- Never keep anybody waiting.
- Shut the door softly.
- Have an hour for rising, and rise.
- Always know where your things are.
- Learn to make bread as well as cake.
- Keep your own room in tasteful order.
- Never come to breakfast without a collar.
- Never go about with your shoes unbuttoned.
- Never let a button stay off twenty-four hours.
- Speak clearly enough for everybody to understand.
- Be patient with the little ones, as you wish your mother to be with you.
- Never let the day pass without doing something to make somebody comfortable.
- The girl who thoroughly learned all this might be called a "mistress of arts."

The Marshal

By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews Author of 'The Perfect Tribute, etc.' Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

A great hickory log fell, rolled out toward the hearth. The carved nymphs and shepherds seemed to frown in disapproval at this irregularity, and the girl in the deep chair smiled, but the man sprang up and put the log back in place with quick efficiency. He stood silent by the tall mantelpiece, deep yet in his reverie, as the flames caught the wood again and sparkled and sputtered.

"Did any of them ever see Napoleon—those men who talked about him?" the girl asked.

The Frenchman turned a queer look on her, and did not answer. "Did any of your family ever see him, Monsieur?" she asked again.

The alert figure stepped backward, sat down again on the gilded chair and leaned forward considering. "Francis nodded as if to the fire. "But yes, Mademoiselle," he said, in a whisper.

"Oh, tell me!" the girl cried, all interest. "Who was it? How was it? It couldn't be"—she hesitated—

"Yourself! If you, whom I know so well, should have seen the Emperor!" She caught a deep breath of excitement. This was another Lucy Hampton from the serious young mistress of Roanoke House whom the country people knew, "Quickly, Monsieur, tell me if it was yourself!"

Francis turned his eyes on her. "Yes, Mademoiselle," he answered. A log slipped and slid and the sparks caught a new surface and flew aloft in a crackling uproar; the elfish light showered brilliancy on the girl's fair hair as she bent forward with her white teeth gleaming, her blue eyes shining, stirred with the dramatic air of the Frenchman. With a catch of her breath—

"You have seen Napoleon!" she said, and then, impetuously, "Tell me about it!" But, though he smiled at her with that affectionate amusement which she seemed, of all sentiments, oftenest to inspire in him, he did not answer.

"Monsieur! you will not refuse to tell me when I want to know so much!" she pleaded, and went on. "How old were you? Did he speak to you? What did he say to you?"

And the Frenchman laughed as if at a dear child who was absurd. "Mademoiselle asks many questions—which shall I answer?" he demanded, and the tone to her ear was the tone of love, and she trembled to hear it.

"Answer"—she began, and stammered and flushed, and stopped.

Francis went on, little thinking what damage he was doing with that unconscious charm of voice and look.

"It is as Mademoiselle wishes, most certainly. I will even answer Mademoiselle's two questions at once to please her. It was when I was not quite three years old, Mademoiselle, at home in the farmhouse in the valley of the Jura."

"And he spoke to you, to your own self? Are you sure?" "But, yes, he spoke to me, Mademoiselle."

"What did he say?" The smile on Francis' face went out and into its place swept an intensity of feeling; he answered solemnly: "There were but few words, Mademoiselle, but they have been much to my life. They shall lead my life, if God pleases, those words shall lead it to the fate which they foretold."

"What were the words?" whispered the girl, impressed with awe. Francis suddenly stood erect and stretched out his arm as if to hold a sword. "Rise Chevalier Francis Beaupe, one day a Marshal of France under another Napoleon," he repeated dramatically. "Those were the words the Emperor said."

CHAPTER XXIX. The Story Again.

WORKS ALL DAY And Studies at Night on Grape-Nuts Food

Some of the world's great men have worked during the day and studied evenings to fit themselves for greater things. But it requires a good constitution generally to do this.

A Ga. man was able to keep it up with ease after he had learned the sustaining power of Grape-Nuts, although he had failed in health before he changed his food supply. He says:

"Three years ago I had a severe attack of stomach trouble which left me unable to eat anything but bread and water.

"The nervous strain at my office from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M. and improper foods caused my health to fail rapidly. Cereal and so-called 'Foods' were tried without benefit until I saw Grape-Nuts mentioned in the paper.

"In hopeless desperation I tried this food and at once gained strength, flesh and appetite. I am now able to work all day at the office and study at night, without the nervous exhaustion that was usual before I tried Grape-Nuts.

"It leaves me strengthened, refreshed, satisfied; nerves quieted and toned up, body and brain waste restored. I would have been a living skeleton, or more likely a dead one by this time, if it had not been for Grape-Nuts."

Geo. B. ROSE Jeweler, Inc. La Crosse Wisconsin

looked bewildered. "I don't understand."

The visionary eyes stared at her uncertainly. "I have never told this thing," he said in a low tone.

"Ah—but it's only me," begged the girl.

"Only you, Mademoiselle!" His voice went on as if reflecting aloud. "It is the guiding star of my life—that story; yet I may tell it—he paused—to 'only you.'"

Again the girl quivered, feeling the intensity, mistaking its meaning. "I should be glad if you would tell it," she spoke almost in a whisper, but Francis, floating backward on a strong tide to those old beloved days, did not notice.

In his mind was the memory of the great entry of the farm-house, and the children crowding about the grandmother, and the gentle old voice, now gone into silence, which had told the tale. The sunshine lay in patches on the floor, the breeze tossed the red and yellow tulips in the garden, and through the open door he saw his mother move about the kitchen getting dinner ready before the father should come in from the fields. All the early life, long dissolved in the past, materialized before him, and his heart ached with a longing to speak of them, to relieve thus the pressure of the crowding thoughts of home.

"It may seem a simple affair to you, Mademoiselle—I can not tell that. It has affected my life. The way of it was this: Napoleon marched to Germany in the year 1813, and passed with his staff through our village. The house of my father was the largest in the village, and it was chosen to be, for one hour, the Emperor's headquarters, and the Emperor held a council of war, he and his generals, there. I, a child of three, was sleeping in a room which opened from the great room, and I awakened with the sound of voices, and ran in, unnoticed, for they were all bent over the table, looking at the maps and lists of the mayor—and I pulled at the sword of Marshal Ney. And the marshal, turning quickly, knocked me over. I cried out, and my grandmother ran to me, and I have often heard her tell how she peeped from the door under the shoulder of the big sentry who would not let her pass, and how she saw a young general pick me up and set me on my feet, and how all the great officers laughed when he said that the sword was in contest between Marshal Ney and me. And how, then, the young general suggested that, to settle the point amicably, the marshal should draw his sword, and give me the accolade—the blow of knighting. And so, Mademoiselle to shorten the tale, it was not the marshal, but the Emperor himself who chose to do it. He made me kneel before him, I—a baby—and he struck my shoulder the blow of the accolade, and said the words which I have told you."

Francis sprang to his feet and stood as he repeated once more the Emperor's words. His voice shook.

"Rise Chevalier Francis Beaupe, one day a Marshal of France under another Bonaparte," he cried, thrilled through with the words which he repeated.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

MIDNIGHT CRASH MAY BE FATAL TO ENGINEER PRATT

150 foreign laborers in the coaches were but slightly shaken up. Four of them claimed injuries when interviewed by the company's claim agents.

The injured, according to railroad officials, are as follows:
J. M. Pratt, engineer, 1543 Avon street, La Crosse, face crushed in ribs broken and back hurt. Probably fatal.

E. A. Evenson, fireman, 1516 Charles street, back wrenched and bruised.

W. W. Wilson, porter, bruised and slight cuts.

Four Italian laborers, minor injuries.

Upon receipt of news of the wreck a special train was rushed to the scene, carrying Superintendent D. C. Cunningham, assistant Superintendents W. T. Sadler and F. Cone, Doctors Gunderson, Sulter and Gray and Walton Losey. Engineer Pratt was lifted on board the private car of Superintendent Cunningham and rushed to the Lutheran hospital here.

Plunges Off Bridge

A curious feature of the accident was the serious injury of Thomas Huntley, 1612 Avon street, LaCrosse, bridge foreman and one of the crew that left here early this morning on the wreck. Huntley was changing his clothes and stepped off the train when it stopped near the wreck. In the darkness he failed to see that the car was on a bridge. He plunged over the bridge and to the rocks many feet below. He was not found until several minutes later when his groans attracted other members of the wrecking crew.

Injuries Not Fatal

He suffered broken ribs, injuries to his back and cuts about the head. He was brought back to La Crosse at 8:40 o'clock this morning and taken to the La Crosse Hospital. His injuries will not prove fatal, it is said.

Railroad officials this morning estimated the crag from which the boulder fell to be two hundred feet in height and 300 feet from the point where it landed on the tracks. This gave it a direct fall of 200 feet and a toboggan of 300 at an acute angle. The rock weighed fifty tons.

Road Unfortunate

The disaster this morning was the third encountered by the Burlington in the last sixty days. The first occurred near Trempealeau, Wis., when the Oriental limited, traveling at a high rate of speed, plunged through a burning trestle. The second was when Express train No. 54 crashed headon with passenger train No. 57 at Nelson, Wis. All three wrecks were spectacular but were remarkable for the small injury to passengers or members of the train crew.

In the Oriental wreck the fireman was injured about the foot. In the crash at Nelson a fireman lost his life while this morning the engineer was the only one fatally injured.

This morning's disaster, had it occurred a mile this side of the place where the boulder landed, would have resulted fatally to scores. The Burlington track follows the river, but at the scene of this morning's accident the tracks depart from the river and run beside the bed of a slough.

Mail Clerk Tells Tale

An interesting account of the affair was given this morning by M. E. Morris, Minneapolis, a mail clerk. "I have been in three serious wrecks since I entered the mail service," said Mr. Morris to The Tribune this morning. "In two of them there has been great loss of life. This morning's crash, for sensations surpassed anything I have ever undergone."

"G. W. Katchel, 720 South Seventh street, La Crosse, another mail clerk, was in the car with me. When the crash came we were hurled against the walls of the car. There is a rod running through the car and just above our heads. Katchel, a big man, succeeded in grabbing this and saved himself from being buffeted about. I, unable to grasp it because of my short stature, was thrown violently against the wall and pitched about until our car finally settled

DOG BANDIT CONTINUES CAREER OF CRIME AND AGAIN ESCAPES JUSTICE

This morning the police were notified that sometime during the night thirty-six chickens were killed, their dead bodies being found this morning. William Lubke, 1518 Adams street, lost six chickens, Albert Hogan, 1224 South Fifteenth street, lost thirteen while Carl Bachman, 1231 South Fifteenth street, was the heaviest loser, seventeen birds belonging to him being found dead this morning.

Although the police know that the animal that killed the chickens is a long white haired animal, they can find no such dog without an alibi.

A mysterious feature of the loss of the chickens is that no noise of any kind is ever heard when the birds are killed.

Two suspects are in the station, but the reign of terror on the south side of the city goes terrifically on. Thirty-six more were killed last night, and the culprit escaped, as he has always in the past escaped, the avenging hand of the law. It's the same white haired villain that's to blame, too, the police aver. They found some hairs of the hair on the fence at the scene of one of his crimes last night.

It's the dog bandit, famous chicken killer of the south side, for whom another dog gave up his life, and for whom two dogs now suffer durance vile at central station, who is to blame.

on its side in the ditch. The noise was deafening. Immediately afterwards we were drenched to the skin by the volume of steam rolling back over the train from the engine. It was our first impression that we had landed in the river and we made frantic efforts to get the doors open. Fortunately we had passed the point where the river and tracks diverge.

Mr. Norris was picked up by the first passenger train to get through and taken to his home in Minneapolis.

To one who has never witnessed a wrecking crew in action, the work this morning was a splendid illustration of what a body of men, working as a unit under direction of competent foremen, can accomplish. Less than an hour after the crash members of the outfit had been summoned from their homes here and were on the spot, and when representatives of The Tribune arrived they were already at work. Immense gasoline torches illuminated the dismal scene and the mass of wreckage reposing in the ditch with the rails, twisted and bent, reared in the air above the sides of the demolished cars.

Blocked Both Tracks
The boulder had effectively blocked both tracks. In a remarkably short time the old tracks had been torn up and relaid, curving around the obstruction, and furnishing a safe and clear path for northbound trains. Removal of the rock was started next. An immense steam crane was backed up close, chains looped around it and in a few minutes the fifty-ton obstruction was reposing in the marsh to one side of the right of way.

The Burlington railroad is absolutely without blame for the accident. It was purely providential.

The tracks, at the spot where the accident happened, are bordered on one side by the lowlands of the Mississippi river. On the other a huge bluff rears itself abruptly above the surrounding country and a precipice, at least two hundred feet high, surmounts the bluff. The exact spot where the mass of rock tore itself loose could be seen plainly. Formed similar to the face of Grandad, an entire section of the cliff, weighing several hundred tons, had loosened, probably because of the wet weather followed by frosts in this section, and plunged straight down, a distance of 200 feet, striking the ground and shattering into thousands of pieces. The bluff runs in a sharp angle to a point directly beside the roadbed of the Burlington, and formed a natural toboggan for the huge pieces of stone. The path of the boulder was plainly torn into the side of the hill. Trees in its path were broken short at the roots. It landed on a wagon road, bounded fifty feet through air, smashed a telephone pole like kindling wood, and landed directly between the tracks.

Noble Leads Rescue Work
Charles W. Noble of La Crosse, who was in lower five, car 21, the Chicago sleeper, was thrown complete out of his berth by the impact. Partially dressed, he hurried forward with the porter of his car until they came to the engine upside down with the smoke stack buried in the mud. Not having a lantern and not being able to get one, he greased some cotton waste from the wheel boxes and lighted it and proceeded to search for the engineer under the cab. They found him three car lengths back with his head cut open and cold and wet from lying in the mud for twenty minutes. Mr. Noble rushed back to the first sleeper and grabbed some blankets from a vacant berth, under the eyes of the protesting porter, who said "you can't take those!" "The h— I can't the engineer is dying out here," said

Noble. Noble and the porter of car two made a cross-arm stretcher and carried the injured man to the baggage car which was three quarters over. "Get your stretcher," he called to the baggage man. "I haven't got one." "There is one in your car," yelled Noble. "No there isn't," said the baggage man. Noble says he seized a rock, broke in the door, found the stretcher and got back to the engine, double quick, then looked through the train for a physician but there wasn't one on board. In the mean time No. 14 had arrived and had no doctor aboard. Mr. Noble, who is a contractor, commenced to bandage the man's head and shortly after Mr. Cunningham's special came up with doctors aboard.

C. P. Wreck Fatal

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Nov. 3.—The Canadian Pacific express bound for Toronto was wrecked one mile from here at ten o'clock this morning. One passenger was killed, two fatally injured and ten seriously hurt. Thirty were slightly injured. The wreck was caused by a second class coach jumping the track at a switch point in the yards here and side-swiping a freight engine.

me the Christian religion is a thing that is certain," she said.

"Humanity cannot save humanity." "I have seen the return journeys of once noble men who have had a religion with an uncertain goal, and trying to live with the belief that within a man, is power to save himself."

"My only definition for sin is a man's being in love with himself and his sin."

The speaker said that America held its share of seared lives among its men and women, although not containing more corruption than other countries, especially those of Latin Europe.

"Christ came to save souls, and not to moralize the theme as the teachings of his life show."

The latter part of the evening's address was in part devoted to Mrs. Booth-Clibborn's experiences with European creeds such as Tolstoyism and others similar, that held the belief that salvation was wholly within one's self. The speakers compared in detail the Christian religion with that of later day creeds which tend toward getting away from the foundation of the teachings of the new testament, as the speaker declared.

While talking of the vices of the life in the world today, she referred to life as a prison.

"We all are in a prison until a power that I know of snatches us out. In that prison we may be rich or poor, and we may dance and be happy or we may not have a good time, and yet it is a prison just the same."

In answering the question often asked her as to what would save a soul, Mrs. Booth-Clibborn declared that the ten commandments alone would not accomplish this end. She closed the talk by coming back to the theme of the morning's topic, the one divine gift, love.

WANTED—BRIDEGROOM EUGENIC WIFE AWAITS MAN WHO QUALIFIES

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 3.—WANTED—A Eugenic bridegroom. Fifty women who have expressed a willingness to enter a test of Eugenic marriage, proposed by Paul S. Hunter, secretary of the state board of health, are without a prospect of securing a helpmate in the experiment unless some man volunteers.

M. D. Bowen, of Denver, the only man who had signified a willingness to enter such a contract, has withdrawn. More than two score applicants of the gentler sex have written to Hunter, declaring they can fulfill the qualifications laid down by the doctor, in proposing the Eugenic marriage. All are willing to follow the rules of living Hunter said he would lay down for the Eugenic couple.

One girl from Chicago writes: "Am 25 years old, considered good looking, have sweet disposition and am in perfect health. The experiment sounds good to me."

Another Chicago girl says: "I am 26 years old, with beautiful blonde hair, dreamy gray-blue eyes and am blessed with nature's rosy cheeks. My disposition has been considered as sweet throughout the United States, and I have not found the lead-star of my life. I am rather bashful because most people have the habit of gazing at me when I am on the street. I know I am all you could ever wish for."

OADAMS RECEIVES EIGHT INTO CHURCH

Methodist Pastor Administers Sacrament of Baptism Before Large Congregation

At the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning the Rev. T. Stanley Oadams administered the sacrament of baptism and received eight adult persons to membership in the church. He preached to a large congregation on "The Social Consciousness and Mission of Jesus," from the words of Jesus, "I must be about my Father's business."

"To do His Father's will was 'his meat and drink,'" said Mr. Oadams. "Judging from the many and various occasions upon which he used the term it meant to him an effort to establish a universal social order of justice and mercy in which the moral law would be fulfilled; the church and state become divine agents for the execution of righteousness; the publicans, sinners, harlots, poor, oppressed, the lost, would be found and the weary find rest, the strong bearing the burden of the defectives."

"If the Boy Jesus can be accepted as an authority on sociology he has given us in his reply to his mother some tremendously significant social maxims. If we universalize the points in his utterance, they read, every man is a social being related to God and men; a necessary prerequisite for mature human life is a clear and definite social consciousness; that personal and social salvation are dependent upon every human unit living not for self but for others; and it is the imperative business of every man to accept Jesus Christ as his Saviour, and knowing the Father through him, to work for the establishment of a just social order in which the realization and practice of these principles are universally possible, and that as the years advance the conditions of society shall be such as to make it easier for a man to do right and harder for him to do wrong. The social consciousness and mission of Jesus must become the consciousness and mission of every man who would truly serve God and save himself."

"Jesus was a church-goer. Every man ought to be. Jesus went to introduce the heaven of a new feeling. Most people go for what they can get. The Pharisees are not all in the church. Only a few. The majority of church folks are good folks. They are glad to see the man who comes, impelled by something good which he has to give—the smile that awakens gladness or rouses the morbid, the glad-hand, the cheery word, and the occasional church-goer may be in a pew when some stranger is made to feel at home in the Father's house by the presence of one whom he knows only on the street or in the daily business avenues of life."

"Everybody should have a church home. If you do not like some folks in the church, go because you have something of social value to give. He who would have friends must show himself friendly. We live by the exchanges of life. Every man is a giver, he gives what he has, he gives what he is. God is love, and the Father's business needs wider illustration. Every man is a contributor. To every one has been committed the opportunity and responsibility to help. Not by independence but by a wide feeling of interdependence will the community truly grow and the church become the important factor in accelerating that growth."

RIDICULE BELLS TRIAL

KIEFF, Russia, Nov. 3.—"Weaker than the most badly broken reed and worthy of vaudeville," is the way today's Kievsky Mysl characterized the evidence of the prosecution in the blood ritual murder trial. Father Pranaitis, continuing his testimony on the theological aspect of Andrew Yushinsky's murder, declared that it had every evidence of ritual murder. He said, in a rambling, vague sort of way, that there was religious significance in the number and position of the wounds on the Christian boy's body. Pranaitis described at length the methods of stabbing, throat cutting and killing practiced in blood rituals.

RETURNS $3,000 JEWELS

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 3.—William J. Star, wealthy Eau Claire man, is coming back here to reward young Edward Whalen, baggage boy at the St. Paul depot, for the return of $3,000 in jewels, which he thought had been lost. A young man left a grip in the station Saturday night, saying he had picked it up by mistake. Whalen opened it, found a letter addressed to a local hotel, and the jewels. The hotel man has it in the safe awaiting the return of Mr. Star.

PANY STARTED IN ST.

PAUL

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 3.—Taking up in detail each action started by the government under the Sherman anti-trust act against alleged monopolies, Edward Grosvenor, counsel for the government, today began Uncle Sam's argument for the dissolution of the International Harvester company.

The Harvester company's briefs answer the government's charge that it was organized for the purpose of monopoly and restraint of trade with the argument that the company was brought together to secure necessary capital to extend the foreign trade and put the domestic business upon a year round basis. The company also asserts that better harvesting machines have been furnished farmers at practically the same price despite increases in cost of labor and material.

It is also asserted that the company has benefitted the public and in no instance has a competitor been forced to the wall.

It tells a graphic story of modern warfare with its high powered guns, its submarine guns, aeroplanes and wireless. The bleak mountains of the Balkan states, the character of its people and of the Turks, are all well presented.

The whole play, in four reels and one hundred scenes, is effective and instructive.

The Lyric theater will present this feature Italia subject on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 4 and 5.

STICKS TO STORY OF SUBORNATION

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The defense today failed to shake the testimony of Edward Slavin, former bell boy at the Grand Pacific hotel, whose testimony implicated both the defendants, Attorney Daniel Dorahoe and Detective Stieffell in the alleged conspiracy to ruin Clarence S. Funk, whose testimony helped unseat William Lorimer.

Slavin underwent a severe grilling, but stuck to the story that he was paid to go on the stand in the alienation suit filed against Funk and swear falsely that he saw the Harvester company official in the room with Mrs. Josephine Funk, at the hotel.

NO TRUST LAWS NOW

ANTI-CORPORATION LEGISLATION WILL HOLD OVER UNTIL REGULAR SESSION OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—There will be no anti-trust legislation until the regular session of congress, according to statements at the executive offices today.

The president will communicate his plan to congress in his annual message. It is believed that the chief features of the program will be absolute prohibition of interlocking directorates and of one corporation holding stock in another. The Wilson anti-trust laws adopted in New Jersey will be followed to a great extent, although they will be widened out and developed along the lines shown to be needed in the nation.

But the president insists that there shall be no immediate consideration of this subject. He believes to do so would becloud the currency issues.

To all his callers who discussed currency with him today, the executive insisted that he had not changed his original policy. He said that he believed the Glass currency bill will eventually be enacted into law in substantially the form in which it passed the house.

UNDERTAKERS IN COMBINATION

Arrangements have been completed for the consolidation of the undertaking firms conducted by W. L. Tetley, 326 South Fourth street, and A. & O. Sletten, 1219 Caledonia street. A. & O. Sletten have been in the undertaking business on the North side for seventeen years, while M. Tetley has been in the same business on the South side for ten years.

Both the North and South side parlors will be maintained. Business on the South side will be taken care of in a nine-room cottage, 326 South Fourth street, with a sanitary morgue, a show room with caskets of all prices, and parlors where funeral services are held for patrons without charge are furnished.

With a chapel for services, the North side parlors, 1219 Caledonia street, have a good equipment for the business.

Telephone calls may be sent to either office where prompt attention will be given. The telephone numbers are Bell 7062, new 493-A at the North side office, and Bell 555, new 1117 at the South side parlors.

Mr. Martin is moving the plant to Goose Island and the committee will look over the place in order to report to the council.

LEAVE TO VOTE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—There was a general exodus of politicians from the capital today. Home community elections were the magnets. Even President Wilson and his secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, were not immune. They are going home tomorrow. Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Maryland representatives and senators got away today for their homes. The fight in these states is of the hottest. In New York it is confined to municipal offices and the lower house of the state legislature.

HE LOOKS LIKE MARSHALL

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 3.—A newspaperman, new in the city, breathed breathlessly up the street this morning, with the information that Vice President Thomas R. Marshall was in town for a conference with John Aylward, possible democratic candidate for the governorship. The political sleuths after a hot search located the "vice president" in the person of Everett H. Burlingame, chief deputy collector of internal revenue for the western district. Burlingame and Marshall are as alike as two peas.

HAPPY YOUNGSTERS HEADLINE THE BILL

Excellent Five Vaudeville Acts at the Majestic Theater This Week

With an extraordinary amount of snap and vim, the "Seven Happy Youngsters" presented by Fred J. Kelly in a musical melange add an entertainment of merit to the excellent five act vaudeville bill at the Majestic opening yesterday for the first half of this week.

The act features "The Steel City Quartet," composed of four members of the company. They sing with wonderful harmony. Three girls in the company are pretty, good dancers and clever singers. The scene is set in a school room. Funny actions and amusing incidents add to good jokes and the act is appreciated with applause from start to finish.

Hugo Lutgens, "The Swedish Preacher," is presenting an act this week that is an entirely new idea in vaudeville art. Lutgens has a small pulpit on the center of the stage and gives an imitation of a minister's first sermon in English. It is a roar.

Palfrey, Barton and Brown, cyclist, perform on wheels and sing at the same time. A more brilliant stage setting than they carry with them has never been seen at the Majestic. One of the company is a dancer and the other two are singers and they all can sing and ride wheels. An imitation of Harry Lauder at the end is a feature of their act.

The Twirling Galbuts, acrobats, amuse with a good act. Several new stunts in the turning line are introduced.

Another musical act, with which are two people, is added to the bill. This act is a skit in which singing and dancing and amusing stories have their part.

KEEP UP FIGHT ON REUTER AGENCY

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Continuing the fight on the Reuter agency as a result of the exposure of the relationship between the news and the advertising end of the British ally of the Associated Press, the Times today used but 246 words of Reuter matter—five items—and the Mail used but four items, totalling 344 words.

From the Reuter standpoint the situation is daily becoming graver. It has long been an open secret in British newspaper circles that the news end of the Reuter agency does not pay, and that the financial returns which make possible the maintenance of the news service come from the advertising and financial ends of the business.

RHEUMATIC PAINS PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Relief Comes After Taking Few Doses of Croxone

It is needless to suffer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up, and bent out of shape with its heart-wrenching pains, when you can avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys, that fail to filter from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid; and the only way to overcome it is to remove the cause.

Croxone does this because it neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, inactive kidneys, so they can filter the poison from the blood, and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is a truly remarkable medicine for rheumatism, kidney troubles and bladder disorders. You will find it differs from other remedies. There is nothing else just like it. It matters not how old you are, or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it without results. Relief follows the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle and all druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money-back guarantee. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to overcome the worst backache or urinary disorders.

INCUBATED ROMANCE

By DOROTHY BLACKMORE

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure newspaper Syndicate.)

George Cooke looked over the morning mail as it lay on the breakfast table beside his fingerbowl. There were several letters for him, one for his sister and one for his mother. At his mother's request he was attending to her correspondence, while she was away on a visit, and he promptly opened the envelope addressed to her.

The communication was from the directors of a large hospital and its contents were particularly interesting to the young man reading them. It put into his possession a bit of information regarding his very early life, and he wondered why his mother had never told him of it. He finished the letter and then read it.

"The directors of the hospital," it ran in part, "are planning a celebration in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the laying of its cornerstone. Among the interesting things arranged for the week will be a reunion of the incubator children it has taken care of and sent out into the world. We have a record of the birth of a son to you, George Cooke, on November 25, 1887. If he is now living and can find it convenient to be here during our celebration week we will be glad to pay his expenses to and from this city."

"I'll go," said the young man to himself when he had finished the letter. "Funny mother never told me I was an incubator baby."

That day he wrote to his mother and inclosed the letter from the hospital. He told her of his intention and asked her to join him and attend the reunion with him. He had intended to take his vacation at about that season of the year, and as he had planned no trip in particular this one could be novel and interesting.

"We'll show them that I'm very much alive, won't we, mother?" he asked, when some weeks later he joined her on the way to the eastern city where he was born.

"And none the worse for your early days in the small glass house, my son," returned Mrs. Cooke proudly, looking up at the tall young man at her side.

"I wonder if there will be many graduates there?" he laughed.

"Graduates? What a name for them, George! Well, I remember several little ones who were there while you were growing strong in the care of the good nurses. I might even remember the names if I heard them again."

"And no doubt I'll meet one or two fond parents who will remember 'little George Cooke,' eh, mother?" Mrs. Cooke nodded.

On the day of the reception to former incubator babies George and his mother sought the hospital with pleasurable anticipation. The young man had attended class reunions, fraternity reunions and even family reunions, but this was a novelty. It dated too far back for him to remember any of his colleagues.

The guests ranged from young men and young women of his own age to children of one, two and three years. But George was particularly interested in looking up and meeting the "graduates" who had been in the incubators when he was there.

Through an old surgeon, a friend of his mother, he was presented to Virginia Lawson, a tall, slender girl.

"You, too?" she asked, showing two dimples in two pink cheeks.

"Yes, don't you remember me?" the young man asked.

to view the grounds about the great stone buildings.

"And my mother had never even told me of my fragile beginning," young Cooke explained. "It was only through my having opened the letter from the directors that I learned of it. Something promptly told me to come," he added, not without intent of purpose.

"Love of adventure—novelty or situation brought me," said Virginia.

"Where is your home now?" Cooke asked.

"In Virginia—I'm the namesake of my state," she laughed. "I happened to be born up here, but Virginia is my mother's native state and she called me Virginia. She will have it that I'm a southern girl."

"And well she may—you embody all the charms of the girl of the South," the young man said, looking down at her radiant beauty.

Virginia swept him an old-fashioned courtesy and dimpled again.

"And the grace," he added.

"Anything more?" she asked, merrily.

"I'll reserve the rest until I come to Virginia. It's only natural that classmates—are we that?—should grow chummy and be asked to visit each other, isn't it?"

"I suppose it is," she admitted, with downcast eyes. "Though we really only met today, did we not?"

Cooke did not reply at once. Suddenly he looked up. "Come and meet my mother. I'm sure she would remember you—or your mother or somebody. I'm sure we are old friends and need not act like strangers, Miss Lawson."

Virginia turned with him to re-enter the great halls where Mrs. Cooke was undoubtedly renewing old acquaintances.

They found her with the doctor who had introduced them, and who they came toward the elder doctor there was the same thought in the minds of both mother and surgeon.

"How romantic if—"

"Mother, don't you remember the Virginia Lawson? She lived in a glass house near mine, didn't she, doctor?"

The old doctor laughed. "Yes—but she was too little to throw stones, young man."

"I remember her mother," Mrs. Cooke hastened to say. "She was here every time I came to see my tiny son. I am sorry she is not here."

"She thought I was so silly," came, laughed Virginia.

"Sometimes it's Fate that leads into adventure that seems strange, any one but ourselves," remarked the surgeon soberly.

And Virginia and George Cooke looked at each other for a second.

As they turned away together, having promised to join their elders for tea later in the afternoon, the young man looked down at the girl at his side. "Was it a kindly Fate, I wonder?"

"Fate is always kind," Virginia answered. "Is it not?"

BELL HOP TELLS TALE OF PERJURY

Declares He Was Paid to Testify He Saw Mrs. Henning in Room with Funk

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Edward Slavin, a former pen boy at the Grand Pacific hotel, who testified in the trial of two alleged conspirators against Clarence S. Funk, swore that after he had told Detective Isaac Stiefel, one of the defendants, that he had nothing against either Senator William Lorimer or Edward Hines, he was employed to go on the witness stand in the Henning-Funk alienation suit and swear falsely that he saw the former International Harvester company official and Mrs. Henning together in a room at the Grand Pacific hotel.

Slavin's testimony implicated both Stiefel and Attorney Donahoe, the other defendant. While he was on the stand, the names of Lorimer and Hines were brought into the case for the third time. Hines is the millionaire lumberman who, Funk testified in the Lorimer investigation, asked him to contribute to a $100,000 campaign fund to elect Lorimer to the senate.

PRINCIPAL HOQUIAM SCHOOL RECOVERS FROM DIABETES

It was nearly three years ago when the physicians attending J. J. Pennepacker, principal of the schools of Hoquiam, Wash., agreed that they could do nothing more for him. He was broken down with Diabetes and was believed to be incurable. Tests showed 4 per cent of sugar. A recent letter is as follows:

"Hoquiam, Wash., April 5, 1913. John J. Fulton Co., Gentlemen:— It is a long time since I wrote you but I have not forgotten you nor the wonderful good Fulton's Diabetic compound has done for me. I have almost daily inquiries about the Compound that cured me and I am writing to ask for some more of your literature. I call myself well although I am still taking the Compound. Yours truly, J. J. PENNEPACKER." If you have Diabetes and are of middle age or over do you not owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up? It can be had at all druggists. Druggists supplied by Spence-McCord Drug company, wholesale distributors.

Ask for pamphlet or write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

Now is the time to think of getting your seats for the Elks' big show. Box office opens Wednesday morning at nine o'clock sharp for all three nights. Fun will be handed out plentifully as well as many pleasing and artistic features. The big dancing number by five young ladies and five gentlemen headed by Mrs. Newburg, Miss Derr and Abby Richmond will be an artistic triumph. The funny police man act headed by Big Chief Eddie Newburg, will be a laugh from start to finish. No one should miss the big show this season.

WONDERFUL DRUG THAT STIMULATES GROWTH OF HAIR

And Revives Pigment-forming Cells That Give Hair its Natural Color

Hardly any of us are entirely free from dandruff or other scalp affections. Millions of us, so long as the trouble is slight, do little or nothing to cure the affection. Other millions are trying to do something, but getting no results, by applying all sorts of fancy colored and fancy named hair "tonics." You are not likely to get much benefit, if any, by using any preparation that does not contain the one known drug that positively stimulates the growth of hair. The safe and sure way is to mix your own tonic or go to a reliable druggist and have him mix it for you. Here is a simple formula: 6 oz. ordinary Bay Rum; 2 oz. ordinary Lavona de Composee; 1/2 drachm Menthol Crystals. If you choose, add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume. Apply to the scalp with finger tips, night and morning, to destroy dandruff, to stop falling hair, to cleanse and beautify the hair, and to stimulate the growth of the hair. This treatment is recommended to stimulate the growth of the hair even in cases of complete baldness. If your hair is prematurely gray, try it and see if it will not make the pigment-forming cells active enough to completely restore the natural color. This formula contains no dye or artificial coloring matter but is designed to make nature produce the natural color in the natural way. Any druggist can supply you with the ingredients or mix the tonic for you.

Proper Way to Pot Plant.

In potting a plant place it in the center of the pot, on top of the one-half inch of soil which covers the drainage material, hold it with the left hand and sift the soil with the right in among the roots until they are covered; strike the bottom of the pot lightly on the table to settle the soil, and press down the soil firmly with the hands.

Keeping Cheese.

To prevent cheese from getting hard, cut a small piece off for present use and place the remainder in cool place. Spread a thin film of butter over the cut part and cover with a clean cloth. This will prevent that hard, cracked condition which ruins the best of cheese.

New York Stocks
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The stock market opened active and lower.

11 a. m.—The market became dull towards the end of the first hour but prices failed to rally and it was the prevailing belief that the decline would go further after the significance of the attorney general's brief in the International Harvester case had sunk in. Noon—After a slight rally, the market eased off again at the end of the second hour.

Chicago Grain Review
CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Unexpectedly firm cables at Liverpool, where it was anticipated that world's shipments this week would be light, gave the local market a firm tone today, and wheat opened 1/4c higher for each month. Throughout the forenoon, the market was steady at these prices, the tendency, however, being a shade easier at noon.

Liverpool cables supported the corn market and prices, after starting 1/4 to 3/4c higher, had further advances of 1/4 to 3/4c in the morning session.

Oats started a fraction higher because of the strength in corn and wheat but the feeling was slightly easier toward noon.

Provisions were firm and higher today, under a moderate demand and light offerings.

Wheat dropped 1/4 to 3/4c in the afternoon, the other grains follow-

GLOOM AT YALE IS MILE THICK

Hurry Call Sent for All the Available Coaches to Bolster Up Team After Colgate Defeat

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—With the eastern football teams squaring away today for the turn into the stretch which will carry them into the big games of the season, reports from New Haven agree only upon one thing—that the gloom in the Blue camp can be cut with a knife. Distress signals have been sent out and all of the "old grad" coaches available are requested to hurry to New Haven to aid in bolstering up the team which Colgate shattered on Saturday. In addition the Yale coaches must develop a quarter back capable of running the team. The injury to Cornish is a severe blow. Another big shake up in the team is certain. Avery, Talbott and Ketcham are the only men regarded as being certain of their future.

Next to Harvard, Princeton today was enjoying the biggest boom of the eastern elevens. Princeton is generally regarded as being in much better shape to meet Harvard Saturday than was indicated by the Dartmouth game two weeks ago. Phillips will return to his place at left tackle this week. Harvard still has complete claim to the class of the season, despite the fact that she has been weakened by the absence of Mahan. His kicking was missed Saturday as neither Bradley, Hardwick, nor Willetts were able to break even with the Cornell punters. Because of an injured ankle, Mahan may not get into the Princeton game.

The quick return of Princeton to form means a hard game for the Crimson Saturday and the coaches will take no chances.

JACK DILLON FAVORITE

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 2.—Jack Dillon, Indianapolis middleweight, is the favorite in his bout here tonight with Gus Christie, local fighter, though Christie has shown steady improvement recently. The winner will be matched to meet Jimmy Clabby the latter part of the month.

HIGHS ARE BEATEN BY GRAND RAPIDS

The Grand Rapids high school football handed the local highs a 9 to 0 beating when the two elevens met on the Grand Rapids gridiron on Saturday afternoon.

One touchdown and a goal from the field were responsible for the Grand Rapids' total while the La Crosse team was unable to cross their opponent's goal line.

The local football squad returned to the city yesterday and this afternoon they started practice to prepare for the game with the Madison high school team which will be played on the La Crosse gridiron.

The second team of the Local high school went to Lanesboro Saturday where they met with a 13 to 2 defeat by that team.

NORMAL DEFEATS STOUT INSTITUTE

Outplays Up-staters and Gets Long End of 12 to 3 Victory Saturday

Putting up a good article of football, the local normal school eleven won a 12 to 3 victory over the Stout Institute team on the local gridiron Saturday afternoon.

The normal school played the old style game most of the time and their line plunges were so fierce that the Stout players were unable to stop them. The playing of the Normal team was aggressive throughout and they outplayed their opponents at all stages of the game.

La Crosse scored a touchdown almost at the beginning of play. The locals kicked off to Stout and a fumble by the visitors was recovered by Wolfe, after which La Crosse, showing a good offense, carried the ball to the five yard line. Strum crossed the goal line with the first local score.

Wachter, Sorgel, Oliver and Strum played a great game for the Normal eleven. Showing good judgment in the selection of plays, Strum ran his team well and had much to do with the victory. Oliver, Sorgel and Wachter all did great work on both the offense and defense.

Good offensive work by Evans, Strum and Sorgel made possible the second Normal school touchdown. The local quarterback again carried the oval over the goal line.

Not until the last quarter did Stout have a chance to score. In that period they got within striking distance of the goal by means of a forward pass and Morgan kicked a field goal.

Because of their great showing on Saturday it is possible that the local Normal and Milwaukee may play for the state Normal championship on Thanksgiving. An attempt to arrange such a game will be made by the local team. The lineup:

MINNESOTA AND CHICAGO TO FIGHT

Honors of Conference Now Left for the Maroon-Gopher Battle to Decide

Minnesota and Chicago, Chicago and Minnesota, suit yourself. Any way that is all there's left in the battle for western conference honors, which will be settled at Minneapolis Nov. 15. As far as Wisconsin is concerned the war is over. The Badgers fought gamely and to the best of their ability, but Coach Williams' giant Gophers shot Wisconsin's last hope into thin air Saturday afternoon at Camp Randall and all that remains for Juneau now is to conduct a sort of guerilla warfare. Chicago is still to be played and if anything the Badgers can prove troublesome to their Chicago rivals.

Backfield Poor
Saturday's battle capped the climax of Wisconsin's poor season. The Badgers played in halting style all fall. Handicapped by the loss of practically their entire backfield, Juneau and his coaches tried their best to develop big league backs from the material on hand and almost succeeded. To make a halfback out of a linesman is a difficult task at the best, and this was but one of the many propositions which faced the Wisconsin coaches at the start of the season.

The Badgers have a strong team, possibly on a par with Illinois, but it is doubtful whether they can be returned victors over Chicago in the annual tussle between the two teams at Marshall field two weeks from next Saturday.

Must Beat Chicago
A decisive defeat by Chicago would fill the Badger's cup of woe and hence they can be safely depended upon to present the best front of the season against Stagg. Juneau and his assistants have three more weeks to draw up their ex-champions and three weeks can work wonders with any squad.

FEDERALS AFTER BIG LEAGUE MEN

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—War on organized baseball is openly threatened in the new contracts adopted by the Federal league, the objectionable reserve clause having been eliminated in favor of a modified form acceptable to Dave Fultz's baseball players' fraternity. Federal managers are today said to have exchanged lists of big league players with whom they have been discussing the question of "jumping" to the new organization.

Horace Fogel's threat to start a league of his own to "bust the baseball trust" was not taken seriously by the Federal magnates. The former Philadelphia Nationals' manager bitterly resented being turned down for Federal franchises in New York and Philadelphia.

TOURIST PLAYER CANNED

MARLIN, Texas, Nov. 3.—"This may be a joy-ride but no funny business goes," Umpire Klem told the White Sox-Giant tourists, who reached here today for an exhibition. Mike Donlin thought the umpire was kidding when he ordered him out of the game at Houston yesterday. Klem stopped the game until Mike left the field.

START SHAMROCK IV

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The construction of the Shamrock IV with which Sir Thomas Lipton again will race for the America's cup next year, was begun today by the Nicholson Ship Builders at Gosport. Sir Thomas expects to launch the yacht next April.
